Free movement for workers in the member states of the European Union, European Economic Area and Switzerland

Pursuant to Article 21 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union (TFEU), every European Union national is entitled to move freely and stay in member states, with a reservation of the conditions stipulated in the EU legislation. The freedom to move within EU is a basic right of EU nationals.

The free movement for workers, besides the free movement of goods and capital and the freedom to provide services, is a foundation of the EU "internal market".

Pursuant to Article 45 of TFEU, the free movement for workers is based on equal treatment of EU nationals with respect to remuneration as well as other terms and conditions of work and employment. The free movement for workers comprises also family members of migrants.

The regulations on the free movement for workers authorise to:

- look for a job in another member state,
- commence work in another member state without the need to obtain a work permit,
- reside in another member state because of work,
- stay in another member state even after the employment relationship is terminated, provided the conditions stipulated in the EU legislation are met,
- being treated on a par with the nationals of a given member state with respect to access to employment, labour conditions as well as social and fiscal privileges.

At present citizens of the member state of the European Union, European Economic Area (EEA) and Switzerland can commence work in Poland without the need to obtain a work permit.

It should be kept in mind that every national of EU, EEA or Switzerland and their family member not being a national of those states can stay in Poland for up to 3 months without the need to register their stay. In the said period, every national of EU, EEA or Switzerland is obliged to hold a valid travel document or another valid document confirming their identity and nationality. A family member not being a national of those states is obliged to hold a valid travel document and a visa, if it is required.

If the stay in Poland is longer than 3 months, every national of EU, EEA or Switzerland is obliged to register their stay, and a family member not being a national of those states is obliged to obtain a residence card for the family member of a citizen of EU, EEA or Switzerland.
